Alumni and Resident Survey final results are now available Linn County participants provide wide range of perspectives

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., March 31, 2021—Final results from the 2020 Alumni and Resident Survey are in, telling a story of hope and promising potential. Linn County had the highest number of responses, allowing a wide range of perspectives to be heard. Similar to other counties, Linn County participants are excited for growth in their local communities. Respondents stated they would support a variety of efforts, including new businesses and stronger youth organizations. Responses provide key takeaways for what leaders can do to keep and bring talent to the region.

The survey was open to current and former residents of the 18-county region from July 14-September 30, 2020, accumulating 2,504 responses. Five generations are represented in the data, providing a wide range of perspectives. Responses came from all 18 counties, providing county-specific data in Andrew, Buchanan, Clinton, Gentry, Harrison, Linn, Livingston, and Worth counties. Detailed regionwide and county-specific final results, along with a summary story video presentation are available to download at www.maximizenwmo.org/alumni-resident-survey.

Participant perspectives emphasize that we need the four core areas of communities – health, economy, education, and quality of life – to work together to retain and attract population. Factors that drive migration decisions, aside from family and relationship ties, are things we can act upon if we dream big and grow together. Survey results corroborate that the region has potential to improve on the factors that residents value the most, providing hope for the future of our region, at the crossroads in the heart of the country.
